Better Even Than Rest and Change for the Weary.

The more minutely all kinds of work become subdivided, the more sameness and monotony creep into each man's

Day after day, day after day, in the same rut till little interest remains in the work, and the mind and body are gradually robbed of energy and healthy elasticity. Unless something is done, the prolonged strain is likely to result in health failure; nervous symptoms appear, cares that were once lightly cast off now stick like burs, slight physical exertion tires, and the end is complete prostration and breaking down of some vital organ.

Business men feel this, public officials, wage earners, housekeepers, every man and woman whose work allows of little or no rest and change.

At the first small beginnings of nervousness or when languid feelings do not disappear after a sound night's sleep, the prudent person should know that he or she must check this decline in health by the use of that one genuine nerve food and blood renewer,

The family physician knows its power over diseases of exhaustion and debility when he orders it, as so many careful practitioners are now doing in every city and small town throughout the United States.

As soon as one has fairly begun to health. Nervous, unhappy, and feeble persons find their flesh becomes more solid, a more healthy color takes the place of the waxy, sallow look, and there comes a clear increase in the vol-ume of the blood and an increased normal appetite because of this rapid feeding of the entire system. Work ecomes easier.

This searching tonic goes at once to the very causes of nervous disaster and breakdown. It is invaluable in all wasting diseases, in all cases where unusual demands are made on the sysof mothers and invalids recovering

Paine's celery compound has saved thousands from mournful years of feebleness, from the weariness of pain and from bodily weakness. It means health and happiness.

Succumbed to Pneumonia After an Illness of Two Weeks-The History of His Life-He Went to England for Points for Concord, N. H., Feb. 5.-The Rev.

Henry A. Colt, D. D., L.L. D., rector of St. Paul's school, died of pneumonia this morning after an illness of two

Henry Augustus Colt was born Janury 20, 1831. He was educated at St Paul's school, College Point, Long Island, and at the University of Pennsylania, but was not graduated. He entered the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church, and, on the founda-tion of St. Paul's school in Concord, N. H., by Dr. George Shattuck, was chosen

The school opened in 1856 with five r six boys and has since grown to be one of the largest in the country, numbering about 300 pupils and twenty mas ers, and occupying twenty buildings. Its rector was made a doctor of divinity by Trinity college in 1863, and the suc-

In 1868 he visited Eugland and studied the workings of the large public schools there, many features of which he has introduced into St. Paul's. Dr. Colt has peen a trustee of Trinity college, a delegate of the general convention of his church for many years, and is a preach er of much power. He had published numerous sermons and addresses, and had contributed to periodical literature

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. Susan T. North, The following obituary of the late

Mrs. Susan T. North appeared in a New Britain paper:

Mrs. Susan Thompson North died at N. J., January 26, 1895, of pneumonia, after an illness of two days, and was buried in the family lot at the South cemetery, Berlin, Conn., Monday after-noon, January 28. Friends and relaives from Summit and from New Haen, who accompanied the remains were olned by other friends, and by Undertaker Porter from New Britain, at Berlin station, whence they proceeded directly to the cemetery, where the Episcopal burial service was read by the Rev. The Weed in Havana.

I have never seen a Havana man moke in church. It's about the only place where he does not smoke. He mokes in the street cars, he smokes at the public dining table, he smokes everywhere. The presence of woman is not considered at all. When coffee is brought on the table, the Spaniard or Cuban lights his cigar or cigarette and begins to send up clouds of smoke. He ever even thinks of saying to the ladiles, "By your leave," for the custom had granted the request and the men were now going to work hard to show of the country is to smoke everywhere. If he is not smoking his neighbor will offer him a cigarette. The driver of your coach will smoke and very likely offer you a charoot. At the opera the man will walk and smoke between the acts in the spaces behind the hoves and balconies. You will see finely dressed seemingly well-bred men, with ladies in full evening tollet, entering the theatre and smoking as they go. You never see a pipe in Cuba. It is the country of the cigar and the cigarette. One of the odd sights to the stranger is that afforded by the negro women, who smoke big, long, black eigars in the street. It was here that the smoking habit, which has spread around the world, had its start, and the Cubans are still more de voted to their cigars than any other cople. The cigar industry and the to bacco trade give employment to a large sale four hundred tickets for the proportion of the population of Hatwentieth anniversary of the W. C. T. vana. To have been adequately hanged by due legal process or private animosity s, no doubt, at present a rare situation. clence, with her marvelous powers with the numberless commodities that enrich human existence, has made huifhanged persons scarce, or (as dealers say) "pretty unique." But the drop was not always "Improved," and, these times, more than one victim of misfortune returned to society after having undergone the last penalty of the law. In Scotland, at least, a sportsnanlike sentiment spared half-hanged Maggie Dickson, though her sentence had not really been carried out in ac cordance with the perfect intentions of her judge. But the stories of the two nost celebrated half-hanged people more romantic than that of poor Maggie Dickson. There may even be sceptics who decline to accept the following narrative, though related by the sufferr himself, Michael Hamilton, serving n the Scottish forces of Charles VII. of France In Holy Week, 1429, when Jeanne d'Arc was just being examined by a ongress of divines, Michael Hamilton with other Scottish gentlemen of the sword, was quartered near Clisson, in Brittany. The Bretons were in sympa thy with the English, or, at all events, greatly preferred them to the Scots. Sreton spy was captured by Hamilton and his friends, who at first extracted his information (doubtless in the usual manner), and then hanged him. What they had learned from their prisone induced them to believe that it was "time for them to go," and go they did, "with what feet they had," ploy a pleasing Greek idiom. In the flight, Michael Hamilton, impeded by the weight of his armor, was taken by the peasants. Among them was the of the spy whom the Scots had hanged. In a revengeful spirit, this youth insisted that Michael should undergo a penalty unworthy of his blood and be hanged in his turn. "If you want a thing well done, do it yourself the age of nearly sixty-four at Summit, is a maxim on which the son of the sp acted. He personally hanged Michael Hamilton, and, no doubt, bestowed eve ry attention on the details. Now Mi chael, when he saw that he could notes cape his pursuers, had made a vow o a pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Katherine of Fierbois, in whose church, as will be remembered, Jeanne d'Arc discovered strangely the buried sword with five crosses on the blade. Now, on the night when Michael was sus pended, a voice became audible to the cure of the parish, bidding him go and cut Michael down. The cure thought very little of the matter, but, as the Benjamin and Harriet Thompson of beadle to inspect Michael. To make New Haven, Conn. In 1862 she began sure that the Scot was dead, the beadle nade an incision in his little too Blood flowed, Michael moved, and the eadle fled back to the cure. Collecting the local clergy, and clad in canonicals, the cure went to the gibbet and le down Michael, who still breathed. Be holding this, and still revengeful, th son of the slain spy hit Michael on the ear with a sword. None the less, he re overed, made his pligrimage to Fier and told his tale, which may be read among the 'Miracles de Madame St. Katherine de Fierbots. Curious as was this affair, it yields, in dramatic merit, to a story told in Wesley's Arminian Magazine, and in a pamphlet. A young man, walking to house of his brother, a found the inn at a neighboring town very full. He shared the room of nerchant who was openly counting ou his money. Having occasion to the garden, and also to borrow a knife he accepted the loan of a knife from the merchant. On returning to his room was a guinea of William and Mary, At the inn the merchant's empty bed was stained with blood, and, though the merchant's body was nowhere to found, the young man was condemned for murder and hanged in chains on his brother's farm. Here a swain observed that the body moved; it was cut down life was reanimated and the youth flee to sea. Taken by Spaniards in South America, he rose to be warden of the jail, and while in enjoyment of that office recognized, among some English prisoners, the person for whose murder he had suffered. The fact was that the merchant, while the youth was absent the garden, discovered that he was bleeding freely from a vein which had been opened that day. He hurried to the surgeon in the dark, was seized by a press gang, served his Britannic Ma-hanged for murdering him in England. Persons who are unable to accept this legend may prefer that of Michael Hamilton; or, again, those who beggie at Michael may believe the tale pubat Michael may beneve the tale published by Wesley. Both are examples of the very mixed luck which falls to the lot of mortals in this troublesome world.—London Saturday Review.

There Was No Pronounced Pressure to Sell. New York, Feb. 5 -- The delay in the announcement of the completion of the negotiations for the sale of a block of new bonds by the government operated against the stock market again to-day. There was no pronounced pressure to sell, however, and the decline which took place during the early hours of 14 to 214 per cent, was due to the desire on the part of the traders to accept profits as well as to reduce their lines so as to be in shape to take advantage of new developments at Washington. There was also a tendency to restrict operations until the house disposed of the Springer bill. A raily in exchange, the posted rates of sterling having risen to $4.88 and $4.89%, also had an adverse influence. Manhattan, Lead, Sugar, Omaha, Louis-Boston Electric Light Co. ille and Western Union, General Electric and anthracite coalers, the grangers, with the exception of Rock Island and Chicago Gas, were all more or less promi nent in the downward movement. The last named declined from 75% to 73%, notwithstanding statements that the Benedict party had withdrawn all opposition to the Standard Oil interests, and that the official announcement of the retirement of the former will be made public at an early date. The representatives of the latter will take po session of the property as soon as maters can be arranged with the courts. Later in the day the market improved and on moderate purchases rallied anywhere from % to % per cent, in the general list, and 1% per cent, in Lead. London was again a buyer of its favorites, but its purchases were not large enough to influence prices. The recent mprovement in Hocking Valley securitles sscribed to the fact that at the oming election a number of leading capitalists will enter the directory. The books for the annual meeting will close on February 23 next. Speculation closed firmer with an advancing tendency. Net changes show losses of 14 to 114 per cent. United States Rubber rose 1% to 14 and Alton E Terre Haute 2 to 38. Lackawanna lost

1% per cent. The bond market closed firmer. Sales were $801,000. Following are the closing prices reported by Prince & Whitely, bankers and brokers, 46 Broadway, New York, and 15 Center street, New Haven:
